

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A print management server comprises a receiving device to receive order data including image data from a customer terminal; a production management information preparing device to prepare production management information to administrate a production amount and a production time for a light sensitive material based on the order data received by the receiving device; a production management information transmitting device to transmit the production management information prepared by the production management information preparing device; and an order data transmitting device to transmit the order data received by the receiving device to a printing section terminal.

2004-03-04 14:00:00